Who We Are

Our world is a visual treasure and photography provides a means of preserving that treasure. Moreover, each of us sees the world from a unique perspective, and this view can be shared through photography.

The purpose of the Southeastern Photographic Society is to provide members with the tools for capturing images on film and sharing them with others.

The Society was formed in 1976 by photography students at the Callanwolde Fine Arts Center with the guidance of Neil Chaput de Saintonge.

The Society has grown steadily to its current membership of about 200 amateur and professional photographers. The Society is a member of the Photographic Society of America, and participates in regional and national photographic activities.

What We Do

The Southeastern Photographic Society promotes development of camera skills and artistic expression among its members through the following activities:

Lectures are presented by local and nationally known experts on various topics in photography such as travel, nature, action/sports, and digital image production.

Competitions judged by local professionals who provide feedback on impact, composition, and technique to help develop strong artistic style. Some are open to any subject matter while others are limited to a specific theme, such as travel, nature, or people.

Demonstrations are useful for learning new techniques, such as hand coloring prints or Polaroid image transfers, as well as seeing new products such as infrared films.

Special Interest Groups (SIGs) offer the opportunity to participate in separate activities with smaller numbers of members with similar interests, such as nature, black & white, or "on the edge."

Field trips allow members to share ideas, techniques and equipment in various settings, such as Sapelo Island, the Okefenokee Swamp, and metro parks.

You Are Invited To Join

Annual dues for calendar year memberships are $25 for individual and $35 for family. Members receive a monthly newsletter, and are eligible to enter competitions and participate in field trips.

Please complete the membership form in this brochure.

Each new member will receive a membership package with general information about the Society. If you join by mail, your packet will be available at the next meeting.

You Are Welcome

Regardless of their levels of expertise, the members of the Society have in common a strong desire to nurture their skills and appreciation of photography. Consequently, members strive to make guests feel welcome and share photography as one of the most enjoyable activities of their lives. Please join us at our next meeting.

We meet in the Fellowship Hall of the Central Congregational Church located at 2676 Clairmont Rd in northeast Atlanta.

DIRECTIONS: From I-85 inside I-285 in northeast Atlanta, exit Clairmont Road and go south across Briarcliff Rd. Turn right into the church driveway adjacent to the SouthTrust Bank. The church is at the end of a winding drive and cannot be seen from Clairmont Rd.
